Health Analysis Product Catalog

Frequently Asked Questions

The Health Analysis (HA) Department is the Navy's in-house health analytics group that specializes in improving outcomes and reducing costs. Since the department's inception at the Navy and Marine Corps Public Health Center (NMCPHC) in 2009, they have completed hundreds of projects to improve population health and delivery of care. Now, HA is making this wealth of knowledge available online!

Why was the Product Catalog created?

For Navy Medicine leaders wanting to make evidence-based decisions, the HA Product Catalog provides instant access to hundreds of reports focused on improving outcomes and reducing costs; the catalog provides a single location from which to access reports and allows for knowledge sharing across the enterprise.

What is it?

The Product Catalog is a searchable library that makes health analytics reports available to customers. These reports span epidemiological studies, clinical process improvement, program evaluation, and spatial analysis.

Where is it?

The Product Catalog is located on the HA Web page of the NMCPHC website here:

www.med.navy.mil/sites/nmcphc/health-analysis

How do I access it?

Click the Product Catalog link on HA's webpage. Then, select the correct email certificate to login. Report titles can be viewed without a common access card (CAC); however, to access any of the reports a CAC is required.

When is it updated?

Be sure to check back regularly for updates as new products are uploaded monthly!
